

House Almost Jumps Gun on Guard System

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House almost jumped the gun today by voting on a $2.5 million authorization for the Safeguard system's control space deep in the Rocky Mountains.

But a last-minute amendment pulled the item out of the $1.55 billion military construction bill up for a House vote this afternoon. Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, drew up the amendment.

The House would have been put in an awkward position if it approved a Safeguard deployment item on the eve of a crucial Senate vote on the issue of whether deployment of any such missile defense facilities will be authorized for the coming year.

Pentagon officials, admitting the money was for Safeguard command and control space in the Air Force NORAD-CONAD headquarters complex, said it regretted the purpose of the money "had not been more clearly emphasized."

The Pentagon statement said the money was in the military construction bill because defense officials thought Safeguard deployment would have been approved by now.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., called attention to the Safeguard money Monday.

"The Congress clearly is being asked to vote for funds for deployment of the Safeguard ABM system under the guise of a relatively insignificant and obscure line item for the air defense system," Moorhead charged.

He said congressmen had no way of knowing the Safeguard deployment money was included in the construction bill's sentence: "NORAD Headquarters, Colorado Springs, Colo; Operational Facilities, $20,800,000."

Rivers, reportedly angered that the defense officials had not made the deployment money request clear before his committee, had told the House in a report that only $12.7 million for Safeguard research and development was included in the bill.

The chairman is understood to have told officials in a terse letter that he would assure your programs will get utmost scrutiny in the future.

Decided Quickly on His Party

HONOLULU (AP) — Entertainer Don Ho has been invited to two parties Aug. 13, his 39th birthday. It didn't take him long to decide which one to attend.

He'll be among the 1,500 guests at President Nixon's state dinner in Los Angeles in honor of the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Kimo McVay, owner of the Waikiki night club where Ho is appearing, said a gala birthday party had been planned here the same day.

In fact, said McVay, "The Washington invitation arrived just as I was preparing to mail out thousands of engraved invitations of my own."

Ho's local birthday party will be advanced a day.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two famous Houston heart surgeons, Dr. Michael E. DeBakey and Dr. Denton A. Cooley, each received about $200,000 in Medicare payments last year, ranking them as apparently the highest paid doctors in the nation under the government program.

A special investigation now underway has found no indication of irregularity in the payments, which involved hundreds of difficult heart and blood vessel operations.

Investigators said the payments went mainly into a fund at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, rather than to the doctors personally.

Cooley has performed 20 human heart transplants, more than any other surgeon in the world.

DeBakey, the first physician to use an artificial heart pump on a human, has performed 11 transplant operations.

Washington officials said none of the Medicare money so far has gone for transplants, although one patient receiving government disability payments died in Houston while awaiting a new heart.

Official Medicare records listed $202,959 in payments for DeBakey last year.

This is the highest sum for one physician made public to date throughout the nation.

Cooley was paid $193,124 under Medicare, records showed.

This also topped the previous known high. A Medicare report sent to Congress earlier this year but compiled before 1968 records were complete had listed the highest annual payment rate at $191,000 to a Florida physician eventually identified as Dr. Morris S. Fox, a Miami osteopath.

DeBakey said the payments covered operations performed by a team of doctors, rather than himself alone.

He said they involved "the whole range of cardiovascular operations and open heart surgery—the most complicated and the most difficult type of operations."

Medicare records show that DeBakey was paid for 642 operations last year and Cooley for 408.

DeBakey said all the Medicare payments were meant to go into the general fund of the Baylor College of Medicine. He is president of the school.

A spokesman for the treasurer's office at the Baylor medical school said most of the money for operations by DeBakey and Cooley was kept by the fund, although part of it was paid to the two physicians under a fee arrangement with the school. He would not give other details.

Cooley, 48, was a member of the Baylor faculty until he resigned this spring after a controversy over the use of a totally mechanical heart on a human patient. He is head of the Texas Heart Institute and is chief of cardiovascular surgery at two Houston hospitals.

DeBakey, 60, is chief of cardiovascular surgery at a third Houston hospital. He was the first physician to introduce the use of synthetic tubes to replace blood vessels damaged by ballooning, or aneurysms. In 1962, he became the first to use an artificial heart pump to bypass the main chamber of the heart and allow it to heal itself.

The two doctors collaborated in 1962 in developing a heart-lung machine that helped revolutionize open heart surgery. "DeBakey is an honorable man and so is Dr. Cooley. They are not cheating the government," said a congressional investigator, who is familiar with both cases.

DeBakey said he couldn't verify that all the payments went into the Baylor fund because the surgery was performed at a number of different hospitals. However, he said the money was meant to go there, and his staff is checking now to make sure it did.

Cooley was in surgery Monday, and couldn't be reached for comment.

Rio Treaty, both specify that an attack on any one of the member nations "shall be considered an attack against them all."

Asian pacts all follow a different principle. The basic Asian treaty, signed in 1954, is the SEATO agreement which states that each country recognizes that an armed aggression in Southeast Asia "would endanger its own peace and safety" and that each would meet "the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes."

SEATO, apart from the United States, Britain and France, included New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan. It also covered South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia with an offer of protection if they ask for it.

In the case of the SEATO treaty's volunteered protection for Laos and Cambodia, the coverage later was removed and the treaty actually was applied only to South Vietnam.

One of the arguments subsequently made about South Vietnam was that SEATO did not in fact require the United States to put in ground and air forces.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, his congressional critics contended, went beyond SEATO's provisions in moving into South Vietnam without a declaration of war by Congress. Johnson contended not only that SEATO provided a base for his policy but he also had advance approval in a 1964 resolution which covered possible use of force.

Nationwide Hunt for Coed Slayer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Authorities investigating the slaying of seven Michigan college coeds and teen-age girls pressed a nationwide hunt today for Andrew Manuel, 25, last seen in Salinas, Calif.

The FBI entered the investigation for the first time when a federal fugitive warrant was issued against Manuel Monday in connection with the theft of a house trailer in Michigan.

Manuel, tall and heavy, with a tattooed left forearm, was believed by authorities to have journeyed to California in June with John N. Collins, 22-year-old college student charged with the most recent of the seven girl killings in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area, a series which began in August, 1967, Manuel and Collins lived in the same Ypsilanti rooming house.

The trailer was found over the weekend near the Salinas home of Manuel's parents.

Three California girls murdered this summer—two near Salinas and one near Los Angeles—were similar in some respects to the seven in Michigan. One of the California victims was wearing only one earring.

Several of the Michigan girls also had an earring missing when their bodies were found.

A fourth woman was killed in California but federal and state authorities have not included her in the present investigation. They said the death of Susan M. Hennessy, 17, of Seaside, Calif., occurred before the time Collins and Manuel were reported to have reached the Salinas area. Her body was found June 17.

Edward Carlom, 22, a recent graduate of Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, whose stolen motorcycle was found in the garage used by Collins, said Monday a State Police officer told him there was evidence one or two girls had been slain in a trailer. State Police declined comment.

Collins is charged with the murder of Karen Sue Belneman, an Eastern Michigan coed.

Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey said Collins was moody and jitters reported he had had repeated crying spells.

However, Harvey told news-

$2.4 Billion Tax Relief Added to Bill

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee wrote a $2.4 billion additional measure of tax relief— affecting virtually every taxpayer—into the reform bill today.

A committee spokesman said the action, revising tax rates in the lowest and some middle brackets, now assures every low and middle income taxpayer in normal circumstances at least 5 per cent tax relief by 1972.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., called the committee into special session on the eve of House debate on the bill to approve the changes.

Mills earlier had told the House Rules Committee he was calling the session "to do what I thought we were doing in the first place—provide a tax rate reduction of at least 5 per cent for every group."

ABM No Issue Against Nixon Says Democrat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tinge of politics is shading the waning hours of the Senate's missile defense debate, but a Democratic champion of the Safeguard system says he can't see it as a future campaign issue.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he does not believe a political campaigner would be successful in raising it as an issue against President Nixon.

"When you have a subject before the Senate based on the concept of defending yourself," Jackson said in an interview, "it can't for the life of me see how that's going to hurt the person who is advocating it."

Sen. George S. McGovern, R-S.D., told the Senate Monday Safeguard could prove a major political liability to the Republican President. He said deployment would feed the arms race and lead to increasing neglect of problems at home.

"And the administration will have to face the electorate encumbered by a costly blunder, just as the previous administration had to face the people encumbered by Vietnam," said McGovern, considered a possible contender for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Although there will be more debate on the $20 billion military procurement authorization bill, the key vote on Nixon's Safeguard plan is due Wednesday.

That roll call vote will come on an amendment which would bar the use of the $759 million in Safeguard funds to be authorized this year for steps leading to actual deployment of the system. That would restrict work to research and development.

U.S. Navy Plane Down, 16 Aboard

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Chilean air force searched the Andes today for a U.S. Navy C-47 believed down with 16 persons on board in a heavy snowstorm.

The Argentine air force abandoned its efforts in the search, saying it is certain the aircraft went down on the Chilean side of the mountains.

The rescue center at Buenos Aires International Airport said an unidentified radio amateur had sent a message reporting that the plane had been located between Curico and Talca, in the Andes area. But the center said the report had not been confirmed.

The U.S. Embassy withheld all information on the identity of those aboard the plane.

The C-47 took off Monday afternoon from Santiago on a flight to Buenos Aires. It was due in the Argentine capital at 11 p.m. EDT and had only enough fuel to last until midnight, the Argentine Air Force said.

The United States and West Germany reached an agreement last month under which Bonn will make payments to offset the foreign exchange cost of keeping U.S. troops in West Germany. West Germany, however, is concerned about mounting congressional pressure for a reduction of U.S. commitments abroad.

In the area of disarmament, West Germany has thus far refused to sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty and there will be no action on it until after national elections are held Sept. 28. Nixon has said he understands Bonn's position.

Kiesinger is spending tonight in New York, where he will attend a dinner in his honor given by the U.S. Council on Foreign Relations. The chancellor meets U.N. Secretary General U Thant Wednesday, then flies to Washington. His first meeting with Nixon is scheduled for Thursday.

Authorities in Michigan declined to answer questions about Manuel, known also as Richard Diaz Jr. and James Skotak, but Sgt. Christensen said in Salinas police know Manuel was there "as recently as last Thursday."

tions one of your options? Would you like to see half the politicians shot to the moon, and the other half exiled to the planet Mars?

When the alarm clock rings each morning, do you automatically groan over the problems the day may bring?

Is Monday your worst enemy and Friday your best friend?

As you walk down the street, are you occasionally made uneasy by the creepy sensation that something or somebody is following you?

Are you convinced that you are overworked, and the young bucks at your office overpaid? Even the office boy is secretly trying to get your job, isn't he?

Do you feel that if the inflation gets any worse everybody in America will wind up in the poor house?

Well, those are the questions. Now to the results.

If you answered "no" to all of them, you're in a state of psychotic euphoria. You need half a dozen psychiatrists, not just one.

But if in every case you gave "yes" for an answer, you're as normal as suds on a glass of beer.

You are probably just getting older and tired and what you need, instead of a psychiatrist, is a good long vacation.

Puerto Rico Hit by Bombs and Looting

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — A nighttime curfew was ordered today after a second night of firebombing and looting ravaged a predominantly Puerto Rican neighborhood here.

Police reported one instance of shooting and said about 1,000 persons gathered in one small area at the peak of the disorders Monday. Sixteen persons were arrested.

Police sealed off the tenement section bordering the main downtown business district and fired tear gas before heavy rains cleared streets. Mayor Bernard Pinck imposed a curfew to start at 9:30 p.m., closed taverns and banned sales of gasoline in containers.

Obscene Mail Law Needed, Says Dulski

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should pass a law spelling out in detail what constitutes obscene mail, the chairman of the House Post Office Committee said today.

"The problem of pornography has been with us for years, but control of smut mail has been aggravated in recent years by various court decisions," said Rep. Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N.Y.

"In the matter of mailings into homes where there are minors, my bill has spelled out—in quite graphic language so there can be no doubt at all—exactly what we mean in this legislation as being obscene."

Dulski was the leadoff witness at anti-obscenity hearings by a subcommittee on postal operations.

His bill, cosponsored by several anti-obscenity members, would prohibit mailing to anyone under 16 any material depicting or describing nudity, sexual conduct and sado-masochistic abuse in some detail.

The special prohibition on mailing obscene matter to youngsters would be added to existing legislation which prohibits mailing of smut material to anyone protesting to the Post Office.

Dulski said his bill also incorporates several of President Nixon's proposals against obscene mail.

One of these proposals would make it a federal crime to use the mails for commercial exploitation of a purient interest in sex through advertising. Another would extend the present law so citizens could have the Post Office stop any obscene mail to them even if they have never received any.

Favors Single Member Dists. in Legislature

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Constitutional Convention Monday maintained its position in favor of single-member legislative districts.

By a vote of 15-56 it rejected a proposal to let the state Board of Apportionment draft multi-member districts.

This retained a section approved earlier for the proposed new constitution providing that only single-member districts shall be drawn.

In other action, the convention voted to set an age minimum of 25 years for anyone to serve in the state Senate. Earlier the convention had voted for a minimum of 21 years, but raised the age level in Monday's action.

The convention voted 73-0 in approving a proposal to allow the General Assembly to meet each year in 60-day sessions if it chose to so meet.

By a 61-8 vote, the convention approved a proposal to let the convention set out laws in a manner other than as part of the constitution, but such laws could not be declared unconstitutional.

Parole in Store for Bandleader

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Parole in February is in store for Spade Cooley, country-style bandleader once known as the king of western swing.

Cooley has been imprisoned since he was convicted in the 1961 slaying of his wife, Ella Mae.

The California Adult Authority said Monday the musician—whose real name is Donnell Cooley—would be freed in February but did not specify a date. He will have served 8½ years.

Cooley, now 58, was convicted of second-degree murder in Kern County Superior Court at Bakersfield in July 1961.

The statutory term for this is five years to life. But under California law, the Adult Authority determines the time to be served. It denied Cooley a request for parole a year ago.

Mrs. Cooley was found dead April 1, 1961 at the family ranch near Willow Springs.

At his trial, Cooley's daughter, Melody, then 14, testified that she saw the bandleader drag her 37-year-old mother partially nude from the shower. She further testified that Cooley stomped on his wife's body, burned her with cigarettes and strangled her. Cooley had filed suit for divorce several months before the killing.

The song for which Cooley is probably best remembered is "Shame, Shame On You."

Jumpsuits and jumpers go it as separates or parts of ensembles. And they turn up in a variety of new shapes—teardrop, suspender, cutout armholes, bib tops. Add a blouse with billowing sleeves or a sweater and you have a whole new thing.

Innova is a new kind of two-sided doubleknit fabric, combining the hand of wool with the wash-and-wear quality of polyester. Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — While the nation's television viewers have been watching moonwalks, princely investitures and re-runs, many of television's entertainment vehicles have been in the shop for overhauls, minor and major.

Some shows, of course, are running so smoothly that any real remodeling would be downright foolhardy—"Laugh-In" and "Bonanza" to mention the two front runners.

Some shows, while working well, need minor adjustments.

The young stars of "Mod Squad" a show aimed at the younger set, will have acquired a snappy red sport car, replacing their over-age station wagon. And Chief Ironside's reward for solving all those crimes will be a sleeker paddy wagon to speed to the scenes of action.

Rufus of "The Good Guys," however, will simply forget about his beat-up taxi, a comedy device that didn't work out well anyway. Stars Bob Denver and Herb Edelman will move to a neg more attractive diner and concentrate on short orders.

Love and romance will continue as important ingredients. "Jeannie" the genie, will marry her astronaut master; Barbara Feldon of "Get Smart," will become the mother of twin secret agents, and there will be a new baby in the "Bewitched" house as well as a new husband—Dick Sargent replacing Dick Yorke as Darrin.

The new child also will have a nurse, an insecure, neurotic witch played, appropriately enough, by comedienne Alice Ghostly.

Doris Day's series will have a whole new TV look. The star will be moved to the city and a job on a fashion magazine, thus giving the comedy series some of the sheen and glamor audiences love in Day movies.

Alexander Mundy, the cool cat-burglar of "It Takes a Thief," will acquire a father—Fred Astaire, playing a slick senior raffles in about one-third of the episodes.

"The Flying Nun" will be undergoing more subtle changes. It started out as a warm and slightly saccharine series two seasons back, and emerged last year with emphasis on slapstick and broad comedy which ultimately got a little out of hand. Now it is being pulled back toward the original concept, with that keystone comedy police chief replaced by an appealing young boy, an orphan, in the cast of regulars.

"Here Come the Brides," will be played in an 1870 Seattle that has grown into an impressively larger town over the summer—and the stories will lean more on action and adventure.

"The Virginian," will have a new ranch hand, Tim Matheson, to replace David Hartman who rode off to a new series, "The

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT! This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

THE UNWANTED

Dear Helen: I guess I'd qualify for your "youth" column. I'm barely 21. But I'm separated, and have two children. Which makes me "unwanted."

In looking for an apartment, all I get is "No kids allowed." If they do happen to accept children, then they won't take me because I don't have a husband. Black people say they're discriminated against. There are other forms of discrimination, and I know I'll have to settle for a crummy place at twice the rent, just because I'm unlucky enough to be a girl with TWO KIDS AND NO HUSBAND.

Dear TKANH: I wish I could help, but all I can offer is an open letter to landlords: Please, sirs: give young mothers a chance. Let them rent for a month. They may surprise you. (And I hope—not negatively!)—H.

Dear Helen: My boy friend decided he would "do penance" for something or other, so he took a vow that he wouldn't kiss a girl on Sunday. He only dates me on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, so you can see this limits us quite a bit.

I think this is pretty stupid and he could do penance some other way, like maybe mowing the lawn every week or not eating desserts on Sunday. Should I try to talk him out of it? I am pretty sure I could.—GIRL FRIEND AT A DISTANCE

Dear G.F.: Perhaps there's more to this "Never on Sunday" thing than penance. Maybe the boy knows his limits and senses when to "cool it." Don't tempt him!—H.

Dear Helen: About whether girls should make the first advance: I'd be delighted if a girl I'd like to know used the natural, straightforward approach. If a girl speaks to a boy without fear of embarrassment or rejection, the relationship is much more enlightened. Three girls I know do this, and they are my favorites. If they want to go somewhere or do something special, they suggest it. I feel free to say "No," but I usually say "Yes."

These things attract me most about a girl:

1. Having a personality which advances friendliness, cheerfulness, sincerity, good manners and consideration for others.
2. Putting interest, enthusiasm, thoughtfulness, feeling, confidence and trust into friendship; sticking beside you even if "the group" is against you.

3. Thinking extensively and thereby realizing truth, rather than gullibly accepting what "society" says, what "the majority" feels, what "everybody knows," or everything that parents, priests, or "the law" believe.
4. Having good standards of ethics, etiquette and hygiene. These things "turn me off" fastest:
1. Acting snotty, conceited, snobbish, rude ultra-conservative, over-intellectual, or "better than you."
2. Saying bad things about you which aren't true; trying to turn people against you, switching to the "winning side" when the group is criticizing or degrading you.
3. Supporting beliefs that "everybody knows" and doing "the latest things" instead of doing her own thinking and doing what she feels is important.

The surest way for a girl to make a boy notice her is to be polite, cheerful, interested, to ask for his advice or help, and to give many sincere compliments. He'll come back if she shows her appreciation for his company.—NATURAL FOR YOUR COPIES OF "WHAT IS A BOY FRIEND?" AND "WHAT IS A GIRL FRIEND?" Irish Warfare Over Religion Injures 90

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — More than 90 persons were injured as Northern Ireland's religious warfare spread to Belfast over the weekend. It was the worst violence in the capital since before World War II.

Two members of the British Parliament called on Home Secretary James Callaghan to intervene, but the British government is traditionally reluctant to take a direct hand in local affairs in Northern Ireland. The territory has domestic self government but remained in the United Kingdom when Ireland was partitioned 50 years ago.

The provincial Cabinet held an emergency meeting Sunday and said the government would take "any measures, however firm or exceptional," to bring the violence to an end. The statement implied that the government was prepared to call in the British Army, but despite the warning there was more rioting Sunday night.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark flew back from Switzerland where he had been vacationing. The British government sent several thousand troops into Northern Ireland earlier this year, but they have been used only to guard power plants, pipelines and other such facilities. Riot control has been left to the 3,000 men of the constabulary.

Protestants and Catholics have been feuding and fighting in Northern Ireland for more than 200 years. Unlike the Catholic-dominated Irish Republic, the six northern counties of Ulster have a Protestant majority. The Catholics charge that they are discriminated against by the voting laws and in the allocation of housing and jobs. A civil rights campaign on their behalf began 10 months ago, and the demonstrations brought opposing Protestant groups into the streets. There have been frequent violent clashes, but until this weekend most of them occurred in Londonderry, a Catholic center 75 miles northwest of the capital.

Violence erupted in Belfast Saturday night when milk bottles were thrown from an apartment building at crowds waiting to see a Protestant procession. About 3,000 Protestants tried to storm the building, which is largely inhabited by Catholics. Some of the Protestants broke through police lines and battled with Catholic residents.

Gangs of youths roamed the streets throwing rocks and a bar was set on fire. Several times the mobs threw gasoline bombs, street gratings and stones at police. About 100 stores were looted.

The violence subsided by dawn but resumed Sunday night. More than 2,000 persons built street barricades with old cars and set them on fire in mainly Protestant Shankill Road area. They set seven bars on fire, looted dozens of shops and broke hundreds of windows. They threw stones and tin cans of blazing paint at police and firemen.

Two armed vehicles charged the blazing wreckage and cleared the road for police to attack the mob with batons and water cannon.

Among the 90 injured were 27 police. A total of 55 persons were arrested.

Two Abandon Balloon Trip

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Two Australian AKIR Force officers abandoned an attempt to cross the country by balloon to blow them out to sea.

After landing safely 65 miles southeast of Norseman, in southwestern Australia, Flight Lt. Lee Jones and Flying Officer Peter Dickens said they might try again in a week.

They left Perth, on Australia's west coast, Saturday in their 70,000 cubic foot balloon called Spirit of the West. They drifted southeast 400 miles and were airborne for 28½ hours, breaking Australian endurance and distance records for balloonists.

An escort plane radioed their position and a nine-man support party set out in specially equipped vehicles to pick them up.

Mariner 7 Will Glue Viewers to Chairs Tonight

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 7 streaked across the Martian south polar cap today, snapping and storing pictures scientists said would glue tonight's television viewers to their chairs.

Preliminary signals flashed on monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory were evidence, a spokesman said, that the photographs as finally transmitted would be "beautiful," showing features of the planet's southern hemisphere never seen before.

Commented Dr. Robert B. Leighton, California Institute of Technology astronomer, as he viewed the incoming signals: "Wait until you see the full scale pictures of the polar cap — Wow! We are seeing the antarectic wastes of Mars."

To newsmen the signals were a confusing hash of white and gray squares. Scientists' trained eyes, however, saw patterns which they identified as craters, large dark areas and the vast white polar cap.

In telescope photographs the cap appears smoothly circular. Approach pictures by Mariner 7 and its twin, Mariner 6, which swept along the Martian equator last Thursday, showed that the cap really has a ragged fringe and a dark splotch in the center.

Scientists expected Mariner 7's closeups to help solve the puzzles created by these new findings, perhaps answering the question of whether the cap is made of ice or frozen carbon dioxide — "dry ice."

Mariner 7's fly-by pictures from 2,000 miles high were stored on tape for televising over three hours starting at 8:30 EDT tonight.

During the fly-by, flight controllers turned on scientific instruments to measure the temperature of the planet's surface and the chemistry of its atmosphere. All worked flawlessly, including an infrared scanner scientists thought might have been damaged when the spacecraft went silent for seven hours last week.

Mariner 6 radioed data indicating that the Martian temperature ranges from 75 degrees above to 100 degrees below zero Fahrenheit and that its atmosphere has no nitrogen, an essential element in life on earth. Results of Mariner 7's scientific experiments are to be given at a news conference Thursday. Missions of the two spacecraft was to determine whether the mysterious red planet could support life.

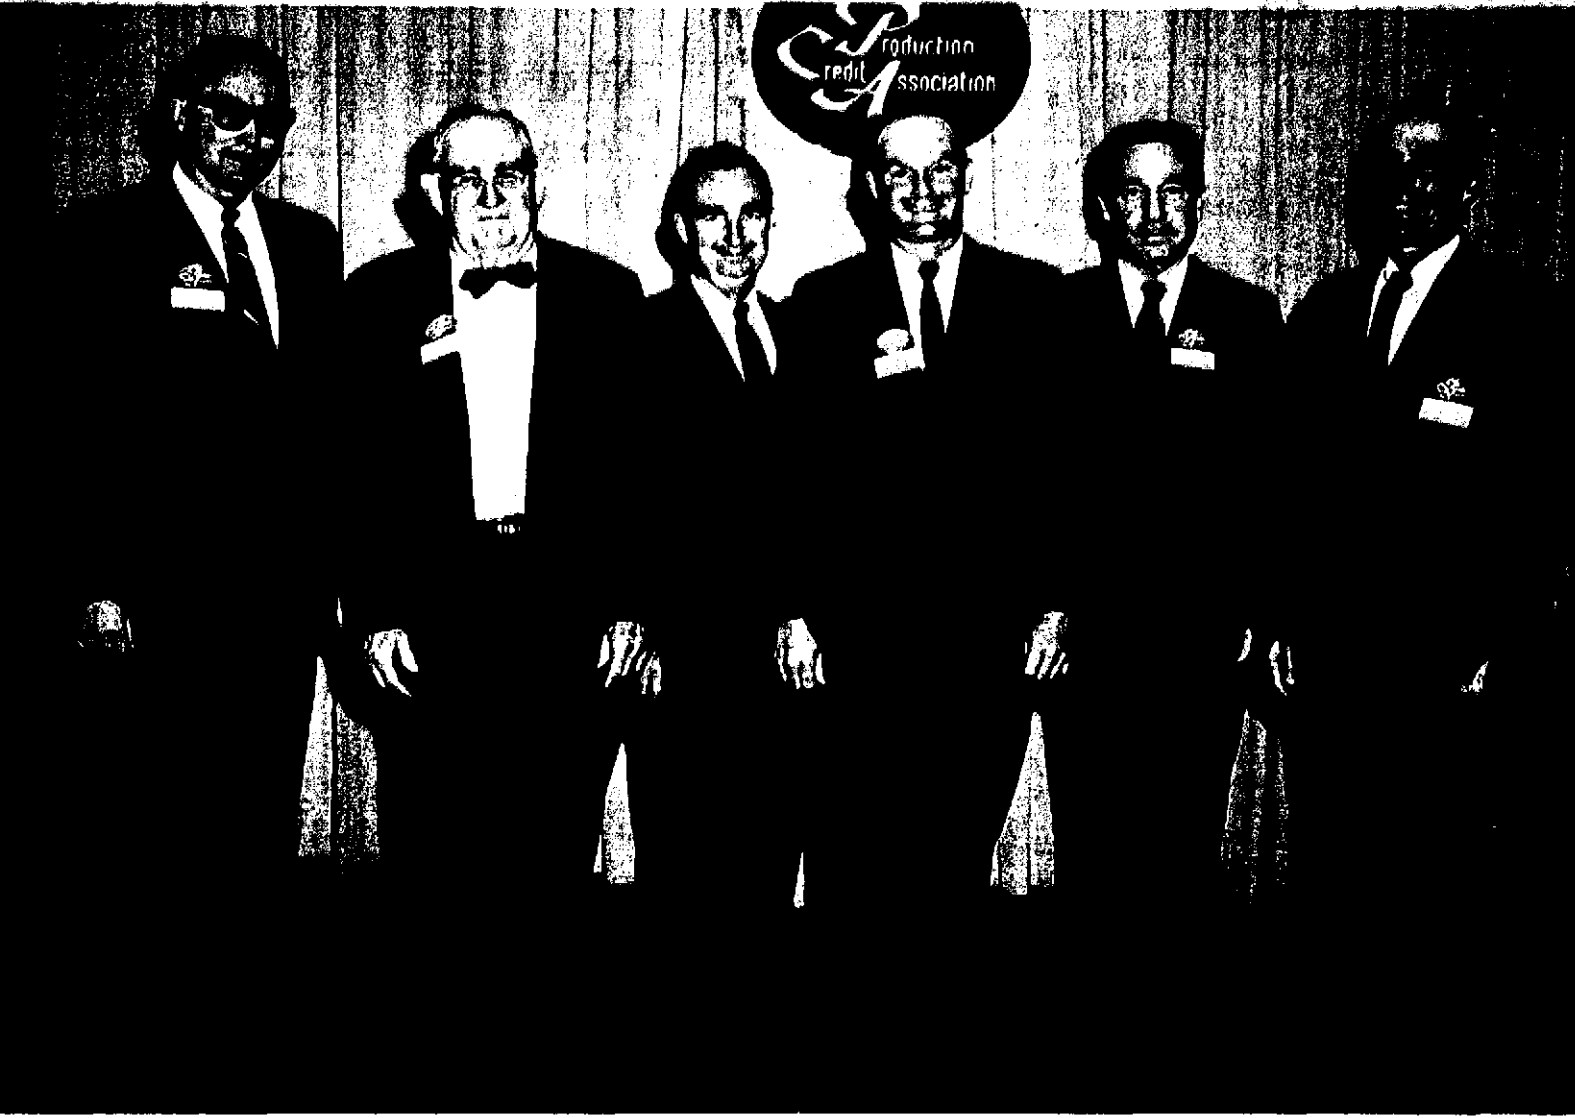

Dr. Norman Horowitz, California Institute of Technology biologist, commented: "If there is any living thing on Mars, it would have to be able to run very fast—to escape the meteorites which have pocked its surface."

A few hours before the fly-by Mariner 7 televised a series of pictures snapped earlier in the day which hinted that some of the long dark lines on Mars may be segments of the rims of huge craters.

The lines were called canals by early astronomers who thought they might carry irrigation water to greenish areas once believed to nourish vegetation, and appear straight in telescope pictures. In the spacecraft pictures, however, they seem slightly curved and lumpy.

"We're still not sure what they are, but we don't call them canals any more," said Bradford Smith, New Mexico State University astronomer who is a member of the scientific team studying the photos.

Armstrong Has 39th Birthday in Quarantine

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Moon explorer Neil A. Armstrong celebrates his 39th birthday today with his 18 quarantine pals and only 26 candles for his cake.

Armstrong and his Apollo 11 colleagues Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins were in their 16th day of isolation in-sion of the two spacecraft was to determine whether the mysterious red planet could support life.

Dr. Norman Horowitz, California Institute of Technology biologist, commented: "If there is any living thing on Mars, it would have to be able to run very fast—to escape the meteorites which have pocked its surface."

A few hours before the fly-by Mariner 7 televised a series of pictures snapped earlier in the day which hinted that some of the long dark lines on Mars may be segments of the rims of huge craters.

tended to keep possible lunar bugs from getting loose on earth. All remained in excellent health.

If no illnesses turn up or no dangerous organisms appear in the rocks the astronauts brought home, they'll be returned to the outer world next Monday. With them are 16 other persons—doctors, technicians, a cook and two rock researchers accidentally exposed to moon dust.

The cook, Jesse Stewart, said he would bake "a regular cake" starting from scratch. He said he wouldn't use a cake mix because "then it would be somebody else's cake." It will be vanilla with vanilla icing.

Stewart reported a thorough search of the quarantine quarters turned up only 26 candles. In another part of the building, scientists and geologists found black silt and a few moon chunks splashed with colorful crystals when they opened the second, and last, box of lunar surface material gathered by Armstrong and Aldrin during their moon stay.

The box contained small rocks, ranging from gravel to orange-size. They were covered with the same powdery black moon dust found in the first box, opened more than a week ago.

Dr. Jeff Warner, one of the geologists observing the box opening, said white, pink and grayish-brown crystals were scattered over the surfaces of several of the rocks, which appeared to be rather soft.

Quarantine of Astronauts Ends Next Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts are scheduled to end their quarantine next week and launch into an orbit of public acclamation.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the exact time had not been set for the release Monday from quarantine at Houston of Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., and Michael Collins.

They are scheduled to hold a news conference in Houston at 11 a.m. EDT Aug. 12, followed by a luncheon with nearly 700 blue-collar space workers at the Shamrock-Hilton Hotel at 2 p.m.

The plans call for the astronauts to fly out of Ellington Air Force base in Texas about 6 a.m. Aug. 13th for New York. There will be a three-hour ticker tape parade in Manhattan, after which they fly to Chicago for a two and a half hour parade there.

Then it's on to Los Angeles and a state dinner at the Century Plaza Hotel Wednesday evening, attended by President Nixon. All 50 state governors have been invited, as well as all of the nation's astronauts and all NASA executives.

Return to Houston is scheduled for the morning of Thursday, Aug. 14.

On Saturday, Aug. 16, a parade in downtown Houston will honor the Apollo 11 trio, followed by a mammoth party at the Astrodome, with all space workers and astronauts invited. Producer David Merrick is in charge of the entertainment.

President Nixon will not be involved in the various parades and other ceremonies, except for the state dinner in Los Angeles.

When Congress reconvenes the first week in September, it is expected the Apollo 11 team will appear before a joint session. However, no date has been set.

Imports of Textiles Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Textile imports, up 13 per cent during the first six months of this year against figures for the corresponding period a year ago, continue increasing with no slowdown in view.

About half of the imports were synthetics—and just over one-third of these manmade textiles came from Japan.

Explosion in Missouri Wrecks Town

By DON REEDER

Associated Press Writer
NOEL, Mo. (AP) — "It blew the hell out of things," said Kenneth Meador.

One piece of metal ripped through a wall of Mrs. Roxa Miller's house, killing the 47-year-old beauty parlor operator.

An 800-pound railroad car wheel soared three blocks and smashed into the home of Virgil Bentley, seriously injuring his wife.

Roots caved in. Walls buckled. Main street was carpeted with shattered glass from store fronts. More than 40 persons were injured. Pieces of shattered railroad cars were thrown half a mile. At the site of the explosion there was a hole 15 feet deep and 50 feet across in the railway roadbed.

"Practically every building in town is damaged," said Meador, who operates a gas station. The mystery blast shattered a 115-car Kansas City Southern freight train as it was passing through the community Sunday. Officials pieced together this report:

About 3:45 a.m. as the freight train rolled into Noel en route from Kansas City to Shreveport, La., the crew spotted a fire on one of the cars.

"They tried to get the train out of town before it blew up, but they didn't make it," said J.W. Braswell, local station agent. There was a relatively minor fire explosion. The volunteer fire department and some other residents were rushing to the scene when a second, devastating blast occurred. The sound of the explosion was heard as far as 40 miles away. Ambulances, fire trucks, law enforcement officials and volunteers from communities in Nebraska, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas rushed to Noel. Most of the injured were taken to hospitals in Gravette, an Bentonville, Ark.

Railroad officials were uncertain just what blew up. Chief suspects were cars carrying dehydrated alfalfa and ammonium perchlorate—the latter an oxidizing agent in powder form used as a propellant in munitions.

The Boy Scouts organization was founded in England in 1907.

Once Fastened to Body, Ticks Hard to Dislodge

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Although only a small proportion of wood ticks are infected, those that are can transmit Rocky Mountain spotted fever (tick-borne typhus), tularemia and tick paralysis. The adult tick is flat, usually brown and has eight legs, making it an arthropod rather than an insect, which can claim only six legs. They are found in shrubs and wooded areas and can be acquired through contact with rabbits and domestic animals.

Once a tick has dropped onto you, it may wander about for hours looking for a quiet spot where it can settle down for a warm blood meal — its favorite dish. Before it attaches itself to you it can be easily brushed off. But once it has buried its head in your skin, it is hard to dislodge. The longer it is attached, the greater the danger that it will transmit whatever germ or virus it is carrying at the time.

If you smear grease, turpentine, gasoline, ether or chloroform on it, it will usually back out in disgust. If this fails, strike a match, blow out the flame and apply the hot end to the rear of the tick. If you prefer, you may grab it with a pair of tweezers and remove it with a steady, gradual pull. A sharp tug may leave the body in the tweezers and the head in your skin — a most unfortunate development.

When you have succeeded in removing the tick, you should touch the bite with tincture of iodine, thimerosal or some other antiseptic, flame the tweezers and wash your hands with soap and water. Much of this procedure can be avoided if, when you go into a tick-infested area, you wear protective clothing with elastic at the ankle, wrist, neck and belt line and high boots. You should also spray your clothing with a tick repellent, such as toluamide (Deet). These precautions will also protect you against chiggers.

Q—In a recent column, you listed some side effects from taking drugs of the cortisone group. I have been taking prednisone for three years and it has been a lifesaver, but now you have me worried.

A—Persons who take these drugs for a prolonged period should have a frequent checkup by the prescribing doctor and report any unusual symptoms without delay. Many patients avoid serious trouble while taking these drugs by holding the dosage down and not taking the drug one week out of every four.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The "peace pipe" of North American Indians, called a calumet by the French, was smoked at all ceremonial occasions, especially when concluding peace treaties. The World Almanac says. The 2½-foot pipe, decorated with feathers or women's hair, was offered as a symbol of friendship and its refusal was deemed an outrage. Emissaries and explorers used it as a guarantee of safe conduct.

Unlike other bridge plays, the Bath Coup covers one specific situation. You hold ace-jack and one or more small cards in a suit. The king is led and you let it hold. This gives you two tricks in the suit if your opponent continues it but that happy result doesn't take place often. Most of the time, your opponent will shift, whereupon the Bath Coup will merely have served to give you time to go about your business somewhere else.

East's jump to three hearts put a lot of pressure on South but he had the cards to withstand the pressure. If anything, his four-club call was an underbid. The four-club bid put pressure on North also but North decided correctly that his two kings, good trumps and singleton heart warranted a bid of game.

A heart lead would have made things easy for South but West had a natural lead of the king of spades. This set the stage for the Bath Coup.

South let the king hold and West was helpless. A spade continuation would give South two spade tricks and West stayed out of that trap. Not that it did him any good. He did shift to the five of hearts. South took his ace, drew trumps, knocked out East's ace of diamonds and eventually discarded his spade-jack on one of dummy's long diamonds.

We mentioned earlier that South's four-club call was something in the nature of an underbid. The proof of that is twofold. North was under a lot of pressure to bid game and yet South would make a slam against any lead but a spade.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three no-trump, your partner has bid three spades over your three diamonds. What do you do now?

Defending Your "Castle"

More than three centuries ago, England's Lord Coke proclaimed that "a man's house is his castle." It still is. Generally speaking, you have a right to repel an unlawful intruder, using as much force as is necessary—including even deadly force. For example:

A home owner, hearing someone pry open his kitchen door in the middle of the night, grabbed a gun and went to investigate. Entering the dark kitchen, he demanded that the intruder identify himself. When the man instead began to move forward menacingly, the home owner fired a fatal shot.

Although brought to trial later on a homicide charge, he was found not guilty. The court said that, considering the threatening circumstances, he was within his legal rights in defending the sanctity of his "castle."

The doctrine is not meant to protect your home merely as a pile of bricks and mortar, but rather as a personal haven of safety for you and your family. Therefore, it applies just as much to premises you rent as to premises you own.

Furthermore, you may act not only against an intruder but also against a visitor who refuses to leave when you tell him to.

On the other hand, you must not in any event use more force than is reasonably necessary under the circumstances. Take this case:

A man talking politics with a visiting neighbor became incensed and asked him to leave. The neighbor arose to go. But he did not move fast enough for his erstwhile host, who speeded him along with a vicious kick. Result: the home owner was held liable for assault and battery. The court said the kick was simply not justified by the circumstances.

Nor may you arbitrarily widen your legitimate circle of defense. In another case a girl's protective father saw, approaching the house, a youth whom he had ordered to stay away. The father opened his front door, stepped outside, and shot the caller in the arm.

Here too the home owner was ordered to pay damages.

"A man's house is his castle," said the court, "but he has no right to go (outside) and attempt to kill a man who has done no act indicating the intention of making forcible entry."

American Women Big Losers

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK—(NEA)—Marshall McLuhan has called cash "the poor man's credit card."

And according to two recent nationwide surveys, adult Americans lose their "poor man's credit card" at the rate of about $2 billion per year.

Women, who claim they can compete successfully with men if given half a chance, can take a bow of achievement as a result of these surveys. We're way ahead in the battle of the sexes when it comes to losing cash. Approximately one woman in 12 is a cash loser compared to one in 20 men.

Don't get ruffled feathers and cry "discrimination." There's a reason. Findings of the surveys show that although it's generally assumed that the cash loss hazard is greatest when traveling, this is not so.

Stay-at-homes, it seems, have even greater loss frequency. Most cash is lost at home, at work and in shops in one's home town.

Why wouldn't women be the greatest offenders under these circumstances? Who's at home more? Who does most of the shopping and works, too.

The surveys also indicate that college-educated adults have a loss frequency nearly twice as high as that of high school grads. Perhaps there should be college courses in how to live in an affluent society and remain affluent ourselves.

Loss of money is not a subject to be taken lightly. And most of us who have lost cash are loathe to discuss it because so often the circumstances show us up as careless or foolish. Obviously, the public generally needs to acquire a better set of money-handling habits.

How do people lose cash? Half the time those who have lost money don't know how it happened. Among those who do, two out of three times the loss is "off the person"—out of a pocket, or purse—either stolen or accidentally dropped. This is because so many of us retain the historic "mattress and money-belt" psychology regarding cash despite the modern popularization of banking as an institution in American life.

Women are notoriously careless with their handbags while they are shopping, and petty thieves thrive on removing wallets. Their methods vary, but ladies, if a fellow shopper asks you to approve her selection, clutch your bag while you answer her or your companionable smile may turn to a look of dismay when you find your money gone.

Here are a few comments from born losers who were asked how their money got away:

• "I put money in the mail for payment on a TV. It never got to the company."

• "There was an item in a newspaper about custom plastic slipcovers and when the man took the order, he took a deposit. Then, according to the district attorney, he left town."

• "I had been out shopping and carried my money in my bra. When I came home and was undressing I leaned over to flush the commode and the money fell out of my bra. The sewer was $20 richer."

• "Someone came in the back of the church during services while we were all kneeling and took all the purses."

• "Fell asleep on the couch in someone's house. When I awoke, my money was gone."

The bizarre things some retired people do with their money are worth some note, too. Is it because age makes them eccentric, because they remember the Depression and don't trust banks? Whatever the reason, they often endanger their lives and the welfare of their families in the process.

One man has over $40,000 in crumpled $5, $10 and $20 bills in metal boxes cemented into the foundation of his house. His wife thinks he's wrong and tells people how she wishes he would put the money in the bank instead. If any of her confidantes are excavators she may come home some evening to find the home site there but no home.

Another senior citizen has 12 bank accounts under assumed names "to protect his family from probate judges." His family could be years finding it all after

CALKING FILLS THE MAINTENANCE GAP

By MR. FIX

Calking isn't expensive and it takes no skill to apply it. Not calking leads to expensive maintenance problems and problems that may require professional help to cure.

The choice is as simple as that.

You can calk most any time except when the temperature drops below 40 degrees. Any season is the right season. It makes sense to calk before you paint and any new construction must be calked.

Calking compound is a puttylike substance, only more pliable, that is used to seal cracks and joints in your house. The stuff lasts a long time but it should be checked occasionally and replaced if any of it has dried out or shrunk and no longer fills the gap.

Calking should be applied around window and door frames, between siding and vertical corner boards, between window sill and siding, between dormer and roof, between chimney and roof, his death.

An elderly widow has the hollow brass posts of her bed stuffed with silver coins. The bed has grown too heavy to move. Her daughter, who finally found the cache, doesn't know for sure whether she should buy mom another brass poster bed and hire full-time brass bed watchers.

The relationship between most cash losing and carelessness is obvious.

Among Americans, the surveys report, carelessness is so persistently a part of everyday living it must be deemed almost a national habit. And women, it seems, lead the march.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

between siding and top of foundation, between steps and porches—almost every joint you can find on the outside of the house.

Calking compound is available in two grades—gun-grade and knife-grade. Gun-grade can be bought in a prepackaged cartridge with its own plastic nozzle. Just slip the cartridge into a calking gun and you are ready to work. Gun-grade also can be obtained in bulk for hand packing into a calking gun.

For the average homeowner the cartridge method is best. The few times you will use it hardly makes it worthwhile to pack a calking gun and then clean it out. For people in construction work or painters the lower cost of bulk calking makes sense.

Knife-grade calking compound is a little stiffer and is packed in place with a putty knife. When it dries it is just as flexible as the gun-grade.

Calking compound adheres well to most any surface—wood, brick, concrete, stone or metal. It will adhere better, however, if the surface is clean. Old calking should be completely scraped away. Brush off loose particles. Wiping with turpentine or thinner will remove any trace of old calking from the surface.

Do not calk when wood is wet. Wait a few days if it has rained.

On raw wood it is a good idea to coat the surface with linseed oil. If you don't, the wood will soak up all the oil in the compound and leave it dry and crumbling.

Keep steady pressure on the trigger of the calking gun to assure an unbroken and fairly wide bead of calking. The crack or opening should be completely covered.

Use calking for minor repairs. Cracks in wood or small rotted out spots can be filled with calking and painted over. Clean out all the decayed wood before filling. Small cracks should be cleaned out and widened, wider at the bottom than at the surface, so that calking will hold.

Calking keeps in heat in winter, cool air in summer, keeps moisture from seeping in whenever it rains. Failure to calk (or recalk when needed) leads to expensive damage.

The name of "Beloved Physician" given to St. Luke was first used in the Apostle Paul's epistle to the Colossians.

Balky Lantern; Bait Stations Open Late on Narrows

This being the season for the bass to school on Narrows Lake Capt. Bob Peterson and I took off last Friday afternoon for a venture about day-break Saturday.

My boat being still in town from the excursion on the Tennessee River, we took it, detouring by way of Millwood Lake to pick up our fishing gear in lockers at Paul Millwee's Cypress Slough dock, and arrived at the newspaper-radio cottage on the Narrows in time—so we thought—to do a spot of night fishing also.

But this is far from being a success story. One of the most dependable items at the cottage is a two-burner Coleman gasoline lantern—but a fundamental factor about gasoline lanterns is how long they have been left around unused. We had brought along spare mantles and a can of fuel—but the lantern stubbornly refused to light up.

Obviously the orifice (jet opening, to those of you who are unlearned) was clogged. So Peterson undertook the task of dismantling the lantern and cleaning out the orifice. The job ran about two hours, the lantern worked fine—but by that time it was too late for fishing, and we turned in.

That was the first disaster. The second disaster was less excusable. We got up at 4 a.m., cooked breakfast, and went down to the boat at the Swaha Lodge dock about 5:30. The dock was dark. We had gas, but the minnows we were looking for were not available.

Up the lake we went thinking to get minnows at the Self Creek Boat Center dock at Daisy. No dice. That dock wasn't open either. Nor did it open until 7 a.m. precisely.

Our target was a certain rocky point where Vic Cobb and your editor once caught 13 bass in about 15 minutes—but that was at 5 a.m. Peterson and I didn't arrive with our minnows until 8 on Saturday. We didn't get a bite.

So I'm warning you—if you're going to fish the Narrows nowadays buy your minnows the night before. We learned later that the Sportsmen's Center in Murfreesboro is supposed to open earlier than the Narrows stations—but I don't guarantee this.

Last week-end's venture was a double disaster—but at least we have the information for better luck at a later date. At least we'll have a working lantern, and a stock of minnows before hitting the lake.

Arkansan Is Arrested in Holdup

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark. (AP) — Junior Powers, 31, of Water-villet, Mich., formerly of Trumann, was arrested Monday in connection with the holdup earlier in the day of the Citizens Bank of nearby Smithville.

Officers said Powers was found in an outdoor privy on a farm. Authorities reported recovering $6,800. The robbery took place in the afternoon when a man posing as an inspector for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. came into the bank, showed a .38-caliber pistol and took the money from two bank employees. One of the employees, Louise Rowsey, said she had remarked moments earlier that the man was a stranger to her and had told another employee that the man might "be going to hold us up."

The other employee, Boyce Durham, walked to the rear of the bank to get a view of the man, but while he did so the man came around and entered the bank.

U.S. German Heads to Talk Over Issues

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer
BONN (AP) — Chancellor Kurt-Georg Kiesinger flew to the United States today for talks with President Nixon on European unity, East-West relations and divided Berlin.

There are no major outstanding differences between the United States and West Germany. But informed sources say Kiesinger will convey an attitude of caution and doubt about Moscow's willingness to enter negotiations on such basic questions as Berlin. Bonn remains skeptical despite Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's hints in a foreign policy statement July 10 that Moscow might be ready to talk about West Berlin.

Gromyko proposed talks on the divided city and said West Germany "has no fewer opportunities than other countries for developing normal relations with the Soviet Union."

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers said the speech might possibly provide a bit of encouragement and revealed that the three western occupation allies—the United States, France and Britain—were consulting with the West Germans on a new probe of Soviet intentions.

Bonn does not share Rogers' carefully guarded optimism, but government sources feel that See U.S. GERMAN (on page two)

DAR Seeking Family Bible Records

The John Cain Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Hempstead County, is attempting to compile a volume of Family Bible Records. It is particularly anxious to have copies of All families who lived in Hempstead County in the early years, but would also like to have those of families who are living in Hempstead County at this time.

Old Bible records are constantly disappearing and it is the purpose of this organization to preserve them to the best of its ability. These records will be filled in our own Hempstead County Library in Hope, in the Washington, D.C. and in the Little Rock, Arkansas libraries. It is our desire to copy at least one hundred Bibles from our own area. If you have an old Family record which you would like to share in the preservation of old records, please contact Mrs. Charles Locke in Ozark, Mrs. C.B. Voss in Fulton; Mrs. E.P. Difficult to Tell If You Are Really Off of Your Rocker or Not

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Are you on or off your rocker?

We live in such unreal times that it is difficult for us to be sure whether we're batting 500 or simply have bats in our belfry, whether we are safe and sane or out of this world and hiding in a self-made Babel.

There is no need to push the panic button over the problem, however. There are simple, easy ways to test your own normality or abnormality quotient. For example, just answer the following questions:

When you go fishing, do most of the other fellows in the boat catch more fish than you do?

As you wait in line in a bank to cash a check, can you feel the uniformed guard's eyes staring at you suspiciously?

After 10 or more years of marriage, is it beginning to dawn on you that in most things your wife is probably smarter than you are?

But would you rather be drawn and quartered by four wild horses than admit this to anybody?

Does it annoy you when you sharpen pencils because the points seem to break off more easily than they did in the old days?

As a matter of fact, most of the things they turn out today don't have the quality of things they made in the old days. That's true, isn't it?

When the boss asks you to do something new, do you grumble for three days before doing it?

At a cocktail party, do you prefer to wait until the second martini takes hold before you feel up to talking to a stranger? Would you rather wait for him to speak to you than introduce yourself to him?

Can you feel foam gathering in the corners of your mouth if anyone under the age of 30 ques-

Compromise Surtax Is Passed, House Heads for a Reform Measure

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Having completed congressional action on a six-month compromise extension of the income surcharge, the House now heads for debate on the massive tax reform bill.

Preliminary skirmishing centered today in the Rules Committee, which must decide whether to give critics of the reform bill as it is now drafted a chance to offer amendments.

Monday's 237-170 House vote assured extension of the 10 per cent surcharge only through Dec. 31. But an additional six-month extension, at 5 per cent, is included in the tax reform bill.

The entire extension is needed, the Nixon administration argues, if inflation is to be brought under control.

However, a group of Democrats wants to knock the additional 5 per cent extension out of the reform bill, which comes up for debate Wednesday with a vote planned for Thursday.

They also seek an opportunity to offer an amendment readjusting the proposed income tax rate reductions in the bill. The critics want to give less relief to upper bracket taxpayers and more to those in the middle brackets.

The Rules Committee customarily sends tax bills to the House under a "closed rule," permitting no amendments but only a yes or no vote on the entire issue.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee is asking for this kind of handling of the tax reform bill and indications were the Rules Committee would go along.

There is more than usual pressure for departure from custom, however, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, met Monday with members of the Democratic Study Group, the unofficial organization of House liberal and moderate Democrats, then drafted a letter to all Democratic members asking them to appear before the Rules Committee in behalf of a procedure permitting amendments.

Voting Monday on the six-month extension showed Democratic sentiment is still heavily against the surtax. There were 144 Democrats and 26 Republicans opposed to the bill, while 85 Democrats joined 152 Republicans in favoring it.

Major producers followed U.S. Steel's average 4.8 per cent increase. But they settled for a $4.50 a ton increase on the galvanized items, which account for about five per cent of the industry's shipments.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. was the only producer to adopt the $9.50 increase for galvanized, but it adjusted the price shortly after U.S. Steel's announcement Monday.

U.S. Steel's price on the flat-rolled products, which account for nearly half of the industry's total shipments, has met resistance from General Motors, a top customer.

Nixon Reaffirms U.S. No Decision Commitments to Asia Yet on Troop Pullout

Editors Note: In his trip across Asia, President Nixon repeatedly declared his intention to live up to all U.S. treaty obligations. Precisely what those obligations are, how they relate to prospects for war and peace and the possibility of more Vietnamese, are questions examined in the following news analysis.

By JOHN HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has defense commitments to nine Asian countries, but the are vague and flexible enough that President Nixon can mold virtually any kind of Asian policy he wants.

In the wake of Nixon's Asian tour, administration officials say they are convinced he intends to reduce sharply the total U.S. military role in Asia—probably putting most reliance on air and sea forces—as rapidly as Vietnam developments permit.

Nixon's Senate critics, notably Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee, say they are baffled as to his intentions because he has talked about avoiding any new Vietnam and yet reaffirmed U.S. treaty obligations plus some strongly worded assurances of his own in the case of Thailand.

In addition Nixon has implied some commitments that are general enough to cover any Asian country in the event of nuclear threat or attack. Well-informed officials regard this as applying particularly to India, even though that traditionally neutral country has never had an alliance with the United States or the community powers.

The network of U.S. alliances in Asia is largely an outgrowth of negotiation of the peace treaty with Japan in 1951 and the collapse of French power in Southeast Asia in 1954. The treaties thus came a few years after the North Atlantic Alliance between the United States and the Western European countries and are less binding than the NATO pact.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources said today the military leaders in Saigon have not yet forwarded to Washington their recommendations on the scope of a possible further withdrawal of troops from Vietnam.

Until this recommendation is received, President Nixon will not make his decision on whether to go beyond the 25,000 troop pull-out announced in early June.

The White House said Monday no decision has been made on further troop replacements; that is, replacement of American forces by South Vietnamese, but an announcement on the subject will be made in the latter part of August.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., had related earlier that Nixon at a meeting with Capitol leaders expressed "The evident belief that we'll probably have a further troop replacement and it could come probably before end of this month."

Pentagon sources said they knew of no basis for reports that the President will announce a 50,000-man withdrawal later this month to be followed by another 50,000 in October.

These sources said they have seen no such figures in defense working papers on which the next pull-out decision will be based.

Military leaders are known to believe that the South Vietnamese are not capable of replacing 100,000 American combat troops this year.

Negroes Make Threats in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A meeting of Little Rock's City Manager Board Monday night erupted with complaints from Negroes and threats of violence if their demands were not met immediately.

Mayor Haco Boyd said after the meeting "I have never seen such rebellion, insurrection and threats to burn and kill, and personal intimidation as I have seen tonight."

The mayor and board members Charles Bussey, who is Negro, and Joseph Hurst, who is white, took the brunt of the outburst as about 80 young Negroes complained and threatened.

The complaints primarily concerned alleged police brutality against a retarded 13-year-old girl arrested July 28.

When a speaker pleased the crowd, applause and shouting erupted, with cries of "tell it like it is, baby," and "burn, baby, burn."

Later the crowd left the meeting and sang, "We Shall Overcome," and apparently caused some minor damage to the area outside the board meeting room.

State Plan for Desegregation Is Rejected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Federal Department of Health, rejected as too unspecific the Arkansas plan for desegregating state colleges and universities.

He noted that few Negroes go to the predominantly white colleges and universities and few blacks go to historically Negro Arkansas A&M College at Pine Bluff.

Women Hold the Upper Hand in Physical Therapy

By ERNIE HOOD
Distributed by NEA

Excellent employment opportunities for physical therapists are expected all through the 1970s. In fact, the demand for qualified people is expected to exceed the supply.

Physical therapists help those with muscle, nerve, joint and bone diseases or injuries to overcome their disabilities. Following physicians' instructions the therapists treat patients through physical exercise, the use of mechanical apparatus, massage and applications of heat or cold, light, water or electricity. At last reports more than 12,500 licensed physical therapists were employed—nearly three-fourths of them women.

The employment demand is expected to increase rapidly in the years ahead as the result of increased public recognition of the importance of rehabilitation for accident victims, crippled children, disabled older persons, etc.

Many new physical therapy positions are expected to be created as programs to aid crippled children and vocational rehabilitation activities are expanded. Expected rapid growth in nursing homes also will result in need for more therapists as staff members and more physicians are expected to recommend physical therapy for patients as techniques and equipment for treatment are improved.

In addition, many openings will continue to arise each year to replace the larger number of women who leave the profession for marriage and family responsibilities.

Part-time positions will continue to be available in many communities.

About four-fifths of all physical therapists work in general hospitals, in hospitals that specialize in the care of pediatric, orthopedic, psychiatric or chronically ill patients, and in nursing homes. Most of the remainder are employed by rehabilitation or treatment centers, schools or societies for crippled children and by public health agencies. Some, of course, work in physicians' offices or clinics, teach in schools or are employed by research organizations.

A license to practice is required in 48 states and the District of Columbia. To obtain a license an applicant must have a degree or certificate from a school of physical therapy and pass a state board examination. In the remaining two states (Texas and Missouri) employers generally require a degree from an approved school of physical therapy, most of which offer four-year bachelor's degree programs. Some schools provide one- to two-year undergraduate programs to students who have completed some college courses. Others accept those who already have a bachelor's degree and give a 12- to 16-months' course leading to a certificate in physical therapy.

Because a part of their job is to help patients and their families understand the treatments and prepare them emotionally for the changes that occur, physical therapists must have patience, tact, resourcefulness and emotional stability. It is also important that they have manual dexterity and physical stamina. The work also requires good verbal expression and the ability to plan work to insure optimum use of time.

In 1966 the annual salaries of inexperienced therapists averaged $6,500 and for experienced ranged from $7,500 to $15,000. Co-ordinators, directors and administrators had average salaries of $15,000 or more.

More information can be obtained from the American Physical Therapy Association, 1740 Broadway, New York City, N.Y. 10019.

Conferences with high school counselors also are suggested for those considering this field as a career.

The tamarix tree is associated with the manna of Biblical times. An insect punctures the bark of young twigs and a white substance oozes out. This dries and flakes fall off, so that the ground is "white with manna from heaven."

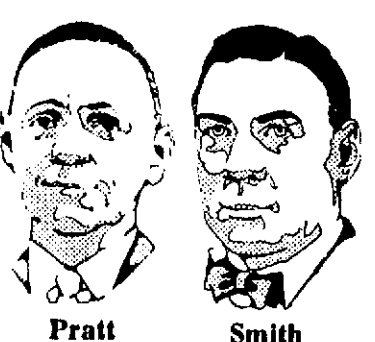

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Thirteen million Americans are prime prospects for what may be the country's biggest and most lucrative swindle, balking victims of an estimated $315 million a year.

That many Americans are desperately looking for relief from a painful, chronic disease — arthritis — and a large community of con artists and quacks capitalizes on their desperation, offering false hopes of relief or cure with such nostrums and gadgets as:

• A "Z-ray" applicator—Z-rays having been unknown to science until this gadget appeared on the market—whose users paid up to $50 for a supply of "Z-ray water," which proved to be tap water.

Pratt Smith

• The "Oxydonor," a $30 metal disk which, its promoters said, would "reverse the death process into life process."

• "Immune milk," the product of cows supposedly injected with a substance that generated arthritis antibodies in the bovines—sold at $1.70 a quart, and just as effective in treating arthritis as plain, grocery-store milk.

These are a few of the dozens of quackeries described by author Amram Ducovny in the recently published "The Billion $ Swindle — Frauds Against the Elderly" (Fleet Press, $5.95). It's not just the elderly, however, who are victimized in this swindle. About 70 per cent of the 13 million arthritis sufferers are in the over-45 age group.

The offerings of some of the arthritis quacks are so blatantly outrageous that your first inclination is to laugh, it's noted by Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, who contributes the book's foreword. "But can we laugh," he asks, "at some $315 million which will be wasted in 1969 on worthless arthritis cures?"

Wasted it's sure to be. "Anyone or anything claiming to cure arthritis is a phony," writes Ducovny, citing medical authorities for the flat statement that "the disease is presently incurable"—though some forms can be partially helped.

One anecdote illustrates how, even knowing this, the arthritis sufferer seeks relief so desperately that he keeps the $315 million-a-year swindle going.

A witness before the Senate Committee on Aging was Jerry J. Walsh, educational consultant to the Arthritis Foundation. An arthritic himself, he confessed he'd spent $3,500 on worthless nostrums before he took on the job of exposing quackeries for the foundation.

But when a member of the committee asked him what he'd do if someone said he had a new arthritis medicine that would relieve his pain, Walsh gave him an honest, tortured answer: "To be honest, senator, if nobody was looking, I'd give it a try."

The Ducovny book covers scores of other frauds and swindles that prey mainly on the elderly—from "work-at-home" schemes to Social Security impostors to health insurance that doesn't pay the promised benefits. Not very pretty reading, but eye-opening—and maybe something you should read before reaching the age when you become a target.

Fortune Store Has a Law, Order Window

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The clerks wear prison clothes, they sell articles made by ex-convicts and a jut-jawed J. Edgar Hoover glares from a poster in the window of a new little shop in Greenwich Village.

"That's our 'law and order' window," George Freeman, 30, says with a smile. He's assistant manager of The Fortune Store, which opened Monday.

Freeman and about half a dozen others working in the narrow, basement shop are ex-convicts. They wear their former prison numbers stenciled in black on prison-issue blue denim shirts.

"I had my choice of 141985 from Sing Sing, 44109 from Dannemora, or 42871 from New Jersey State Prison," says Freeman. He was paroled three weeks ago after spending portions of five years in each for armed robbery. "I finally chose my New Jersey number because it was the shortest to remember."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A report presented to the U.N. Security Council today recommended U.N. protection against attacks for small nations that do not maintain armies.

Such state, without arms and without a military alliance, "contributes somehow to the relaxation of international tensions and to general disarmament," the report said and "is entitled to a special measure of protection from the international community."

The study listed 96 such states and territories ranging in size from Monaco, 3.5 of a square mile, to the Congo Brazzaville with 132,000 square miles, and in population from Pitcairn Island with 92 people to Trinidad and Tobago with a million. Seventeen are U.N. members.

The U.N. Institute for Training and Research issued the 230-page study.

"TAKE ME ALONG."
Sunken Gardens model Debbie Dick of St. Petersburg, Fla., says she wants to go to the moon, but that's a rather scanty space suit for lunar exploring.
